Introduction

This report is an update of the 2017 South Padre Island Comprehensive Resort Market Analysis. The primary focus of the report is on general visitation trends, causeway traffic and visitation by market segment, day visitors, border crossing, and air travel from Mexico to Texas.

This report like previous reports provides an analysis of Queen Isabella Causeway's visitors crossing and organizes visitors by market segment, type of accommodation, length of stay during their visit, and time of year they visited. AEC introduced the Causeway Crossing Effectiveness Index (CCEI) in the 2014 reports to estimate the monthly impact of visitors on the local economy. The impact is a useful tool to effectively measure the level of spending by visitors. In addition, the index helps in implicitly differentiating local and non-local visitors.

The report also provides data on pedestrian crossing, passenger vehicles and bus crossing, and air travel statistics. In addition, the report includes a list of the Island's lodging and rental condominium stock in the appendix section.

General Visitation Trends

South Padre Island is one of the leading sources injecting external dollars into the region's economy in spite of its small size both in surface area and population. South Padre Island generates the biggest leisure travel's economic impact in Cameron County in terms of increased economic activity, value-added, and tourism related jobs. Quantifying the economic impact and contribution of South Padre Island informs all stakeholders and decision makers about the importance of the Island as an important economic engine for the region. It also allows local and regional officials and decision makers to develop policies and make economic decisions that benefits the whole region.

Traditional analyses are typically designed to compute a cost-benefit estimate of a resource. They usually generate a ledger-type report that outlines a linear accounting of the revenues generated and costs incurred from developing a region or implementing a policy. These analyses provide a partial picture of the full benefit and cost of such projects and do not capture the impact of linkages intricacies and subsequent spillovers, and subsequently fail to provide a complete and accurate picture of the true importance of the resource to the different stakeholders.

The Island offers an array of outdoor and water related activities, an outstanding birding center, and is located within a network of nature preserves, historical battlefield sites, and various golf courses. As the premier tourist destination in the lower Rio Grande Valley, the Island's only connection to the mainland is through Queen Isabella Causeway. A planned and long anticipated second four-lane causeway that would connect the mainland to northern end of the island is still at the planning stage. The building of the second causeway has the potential to accelerate the development on the northern part of the island and would spur the growth of the Island's economy and the expansion of existing facilities and attractions.

Visitors represent the core source of economic activity at South Padre Island. They patronize hotels and restaurants, the various entertainment venues, and souvenirs and gift shops. In addition, they directly and indirectly affect the real estate market. Visitors' fuel the demand for lodging, food and drinks, and other hospitality and tourism related activities. These spendings generates jobs and tax revenues in the local economy and regional economies.

South Padre Island like many other tourist destinations has a seasonal economy. The number of its non-localvisitors and its economic activity varies between seasons. The variation in the number of visitors and subsequently its economic activity increases significantly during the four peak months of March, June, July and August, and declines dramatically during the off-peak months. To measure the impact of visitors crossing the Queen Isabella Causeway, AEC uses the CCE Index. The CCE Index shows the drop in economic activity during the off-season measured by the contribution of each crossing to the hotel occupancy tax. Crossing data shows that causeway crossing does not decrease as dramatically as hotel occupancy tax during off-peak months, which suggests that most crossing during the off-peak months are made by residents of surrounding communities.

Tables 1 and 2 present annual and monthly traffic crossing the Queen Isabella Causeway to South Padre Island. Crossing data show that between 1990 and 2007 causeway traffic increased every year from 5,704,585 to 8,136,813 but declined in 2008 because of hurricane Dolly. From 2008 until 2018 the number of causeway crossing fluctuated initially because of the economic crisis but trended upward overall. Table 2 and Figure 1 show the consistency of the seasonality in causeway monthly crossing.

Tracking the number of crossings is as important for mobility planning as it is for economic planning. AEC uses CCEI to evaluate the participation of every crossing to economic activity of the Island. CCEI values in Table 3 show the 2018 monthly CCEI value for January was $8.82 with 18,677 average monthly crossing. The value for July was $52.64 in July with 35,454 average monthly crossing. While the average crossing doubled between January and July the average hotel occupancy increased by a factor of 6. The disparity between the average crossing and the hotel occupancy tax suggests that more non-local tourists relative to non-local tourists visit the Island in July than in January.

The governor of Texas office of tourism reports $389 million in total direct travel spending for South Padre Island, which represents 43 percent of total direct spending for Cameron County. Direct travel spending in 2018 experienced the largest year-to-year increase since 2007. Table 4 summarizes total direct travel spending for Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Galveston, South Padre Island, and Cameron County from 2002 to 2018.

Table 5 shows that post-recession (2010-2013) hotel room revenue for South Padre Island grew at a slower annual rate than Galveston and Corpus Christi (18.71.00 percent, 35.00 percent, and 37.38 percent respectively) but faster than Brownsville and Cameron County (5.10 percent, 15.12 percent respectively). There were similar patterns of hotel room revenue growth for the period 2014 to 2018. South Padre Island's hotel room revenue grew 11.18 percent, Corpus Christi grew 16.71 percent, and Galveston grew 33.06 percent. Brownsville and Cameron County's hotel room revenue grew 8.71 percent and 9.67 percent respectively. South Padre Island's hotel room revenue accounts for 67.47 percent of total hotel room revenue in Cameron County.

Hotel occupancy rates in South Padre Island have increased continuously since 2008 with the exception of 2016 when they declined. The lack of a large metropolitan area in close proximity to the Island and the local visitors during the off-peak months mitigate the impact of the high occupancy rates during the peak months.

AEC collected travel statistics between Mexico and the Texas from 2007 to 2018. Mexican tourists represent a fairly important share of the Island's visitors during the peak months. Mexican nationals also represent a sizable percentage of property owners at the Island. Visitors from Mexico represent an important segment of South Padre Island's tourism market. It is only natural to track travel between Mexico and Texas. The statistics collected are for pedestrian border crossings, personal vehicle passenger crossings, bus passenger crossings, and air travel. Table 7 show that pedestrian border crossings into Texas decreased by more than 25 percent between 2007 and 2011, but started to slowly increase after 2011. However, in 2018 there were almost 2.5 million less pedestrians crossing than in 2007.

The trend in personal vehicle passenger crossings into Texas shows similar trend to data on pedestrian crossings. The number of vehicles crossing from Mexico into Texas declined from 84.5 million crossings in 2007 to 53 million in 2011, a decrease of 37.28 percent. Personal vehicle crossings data shows that in spite of a continuous increase in crossings there are still 16 million fewer vehicle crossings into Texas in 2018 than in 2007.

In Table 9 AEC presents bus passenger border crossings. As the data shows, bus passenger crossing from Mexico to Texas is not as important as pedestrian and personal vehicles crossings. Between 2007 and 2018 bus passenger border crossings into Texas fluctuated but experienced an overall decline.

In Figure 6 AEC maps Air traffic from Mexico to Texas by city of origin and by month. Cancun, Mexico and Mexico City are the two most important cities of origin for air traffic to Texas. However, most of the travelers coming from Cancun, Puerto Vallarta, and San Jose Del Cabo, Mexico are American vacationers returning home these vacation spots.

Air traffic data from the cities of Cancun, Puerto Vallarta, and San Jose Del Cabo show the seasonality of air travel to and from these cities. The data show increased air travel during the spring break period and in the summer and decreases during off-peak months. Air travel from Mexico City, Guadalajara, and Monterrey does not show a pronounced seasonality pattern. A large percentage of travelers from Mexico City, Monterrey, and Guadalajara are Mexican nationals visiting Texas for both business and pleasure.

Air traffic from Mexico by origin in Table 10 shows that air traffic from the resort cities of Cancun, Cozumel, Puerto Vallarta, and San Jose Del Cabo accounted for 19.4 percent of all air traffic to Texas. Air traffic from these resort cities peaks during March because of spring break and in June, July and August. Mexico City, Monterrey, Leon/Guanajuato and Guadalajara accounted for 14.6 percent of total air traffic.

Table 10 summarized air travel from Mexico to Texas by origin and Figure 7 presents in air travel by destination. Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth the two largest metropolitan areas in Texas are the principal destinations from Mexico, together they account for 98.85 percent of all air traffic from Mexico to Texas. Figures 8 and 9 illustrate air traffic from Mexico to Texas from 2016 to 2018.

Causeway Traffic and Island Visitation by Market Segment

Texas Department of Transportation estimates that more than 8 million Causeway crossings occur annually. AEC estimates that approximately 16 percent of all crossings are by non-local visitors. AEC uses data from the Texas Department of Transportation, South Padre Island's Occupancy tax revenue, and sales tax revenue by month, Texas Department of Tourism, U.S. Census population survey data and AEC's data to estimate of Queen Isabella Causeway crossings by market segment. The results are summarized in Table 12.

Day crossings account for 47.70 percent of total crossings, employment and general business travel represents 19.06 percent, resident crossings are 18.76 percent and seasonal units visitors and overnight visitors account for the remaining 14.48 percent.

Seasonal Housing Profile of the Gulf Coast and South Padre Island

U.S. Census housing data for 2010 and 2017 shows that there was little change in housing occupancy pattern for Gulf of Mexico in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and Florida counties. The number of housing increased by 3.72 percent for all Gulf Counties. Average occupancy for Gulf counties in Texas decreased by 0.60 percent between 2010 and 2017 while vacancy rates increased by 8.93 percent. Seasonal housing for Gulf counties in Texas, and Alabama declined but increased in Florida, Louisiana, and Mississippi. Average occupancy rates in Gulf counties ranged from 78.7 percent in Florida to 89.6 percent in Louisiana. The estimated occupancy rate in South Padre Island in 2017 is relatively unchanged at 20.87 percent compared to 2010. Changes in seasonal housing in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and Florida are summarized in Table 13.

U.S. Census data for 2010 and 2017 show that population in Cameron County grew at faster rate (3.22 percent) than in South Padre Island (2.21 percent) but new housing units in South Padre Island grew at 3 times the growth rate in Cameron County (13.10 percent and 4.43 percent respectively). Texas and South Padre Island real estate data continue to show a healthy real estate market with median and average house prices up, number of listing and months inventory declining.

AEC analyzed housing data for the period 2010 to 2017 and found 74.77 percent of all new housing developments in South Padre Island were seasonal housings. There were 658 new units added to South Padre Island seasonal housing stock. The data also show that between 2010 and 2017 occupied housing increased by 17.13 percent.

Changes in the stock of seasonal housing and the economic impact associated with these changes vary by community. The magnitude of the economic impact depends on a number of factors most notably the extent of the linkages, both forward and backward linkages, within the different sectors of the economy, and the proximity to large metropolitan sectors.

Between 2010 and 2017, the number of seasonal houses increased by 6.70 percent in Alabama, 10.30 percent in Florida, 1.70 percent in Louisiana, 2.50 percent in Mississippi, and 4.90 percent in Texas.

Housing tenure characteristics of South Padre Island are presented in Figure 10. The largest share of housing use in South Padre Island is seasonal, recreational, or occasional housing with 63 percent of all housing, followed by owner occupied housing with 14 percent, for rent housing with 13 percent, renter occupied housing with 7 percent, other vacant housing 2 percent, for sale only housing 1 percent..

South Padre Island 2010 and 2017 Census data for housing show that the total number of housing units increased by 13.10 percent while the number of seasonal units increased by 16.06 percent. AEC estimates that seasonal housing in South Padre Island will continue to grow at an average annual rate of 1 to 2 percent. The expected growth will continue to be concentrated on seasonal housing units.

Changes in housing in the 51 counties along the Gulf Coast are presented in Table 15. Florida experienced the fastest growth in seasonal housing developments (12.93 percent) followed by Texas (4.24 percent) and Alabama (4.20 percent). Mississippi (4.01 percent) and Louisiana (2.06 percent) had the slowest growth rate in seasonal housing over the period 2010 to 2017.

Lodging Trends

There are 232 facilities in South Padre Island with approximately one-half of these facilities built within the last twenty years. The number of rooms offered by these facilities range from one room to 300 rooms with a total of 4,716 rooms available. Most of the lodging facilities offer less than 100 rooms, and only ten facilities have more than 100 rooms. Over the last twenty years there has been a significant increase in the number rooms yet the occupancy rate has remained stable indicating an increase in the overall number of non-local visitors. Lodging facilities in South Padre Island and in the Rio Grande valley range from mid-range to economy. There are no luxury hotels in the Rio Grande Valley. Increased economic activity on both sides of the border especially related to petroleum exploration and maquila manufacturing on the Mexican side, the development of liquefied natural gas facilities and the projected establishment of a steel mill at the Port of Brownsville may justify the need for a market study about the viability of establishing a luxury hotel in South Padre Island.

As stated above, lodging occupancy rates in South Padre Island have remained relatively stable during the 2010 to 2017 period in spite of a significant increase in the number of rooms. The occupancy rate is summarized in Table 16. For hotels and motels the occupancy rate ranges from 39.7 percent in December to 84.8 percent in July with an average rate of 60.48 percent. The occupancy rate for condominiums ranges from 41.07 percent in September to 81.38 percent in July with an average rate of 58.52 percent. The combined average occupancy rate for all lodging is 59.36 percent.

Recreational Vehicle Visitors

There is a variety of lodging options in South Padre Island. In addition to hotels, motels, and condominiums, the Island offers two parks that accommodate recreational vehicles, South Padre Island KOA and Isla Blanca Park. There are 754 sites available in both parks; these sites only represent 8.45 percent of the 8,923 recreational vehicle sites in Cameron County. AEC presents the number of recreational vehicles sites and occupancy rates in Table 17. One can see that the seasonality patterns are also present for recreational vehicle sites in South Padre Island. The occupancy rate at the parks ranges from 18% in October to 83% in July. The average annual number of recreational vehicle visitors increased by of 2.08 percent annually between 2010 and 2017. AEC projects a moderate increase in the number of RV visitors of 0.81 percent annually between 2017 and 2020; and 0.72% after 2020.

Day Visitors

Most of the visitors to South Padre Island are day visitors coming from communities within driving distances. The total number of visitors is estimated at 4.97 million annually. Between 2010 and 2017, the number of day visitor increased by 6.53 percent. AEC projects the number of visitors to continue to increase by an average annual rate of 1.75 percent annually over the next five years. The contribution of day visitors to the economy of South Padre Island is relatively small because the vast majority of these visitors lives in neighboring communities and do not generally patronize the Island's businesses. However, because of the size of this segment, it is important to develop strategies that help to increase their spending especially during off-peak months.

Summary of Daily Island Population

The number of people on the Island includes permanent residents and all visitors and fluctuates wildly from month to month. For example, in November 2018 the number of people on the Island was estimated at 222,142 and in July it rose to 569,946. AEC estimates the monthly population in South Padre Island by tallying the Island's residents and all visitors. In 2010, an average of 352,168 people were on South Padre Island every month. That average increased by 8.74 percent from 352,168 in 2010 to 382,940 in 2017. The total number of visitors annually adds up to approximately 5 million people, with many overnight visitors making multiple crossing during their visit. AEC estimates the growth in visitation to South Padre Island to be approximately 1.47 percent annually over the next five years.

Visitation to the Island grew at a modest rate of 1.25 percent annually between 2010 and 2017. The growth in visitation will remain relatively modest, particularly visitation by Mexican nationals because of depreciating Mexican peso and tighter border crossing policies associated with immigration issues.
